

06/13/2026: AQUARIUS TEDDY BEAR

Intuition
saw what
the castle hid.

Sleep paralysis opened the lucid gate.

I woke inside
a lonely castle.

This time,
I wore peace
as fur.

No voice
answered.

Then I found
a teddy bear.

It did not speak.

Still, something
pulled me close.

The window
was too high
for a normal
visitor.

But claws
can climb
stone.

The monster came for the bear.

One slash took the bear's head.

Rage filled
the room.

My form refused
a normal attack.

So I raised
a peace sign.

Two fingers
found two eyes.

Then I gave
the monster
a hug.

The hug
broke its cruelty.

I wished it
a strange
resurrection.

Rise like
an Aquarius.

Then I pushed
it back into the night.

My crew
arrived too late
to understand.

Then the bear
leaked color.

Intuition had seen
the invisible.

Limits became
fuel for invention.
