

THE DRAGON GOLD HEIST

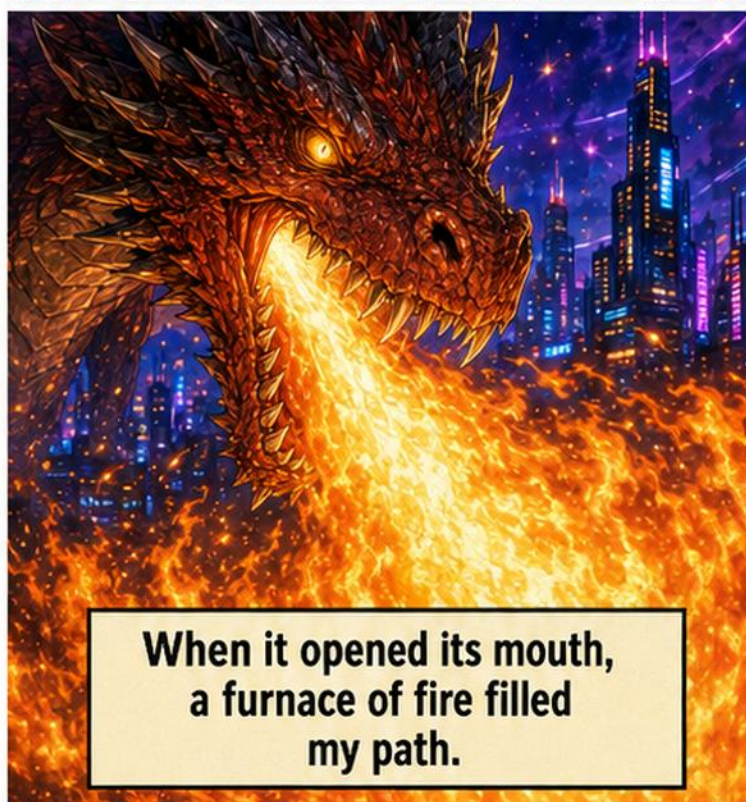

AUGUST 4, 2026

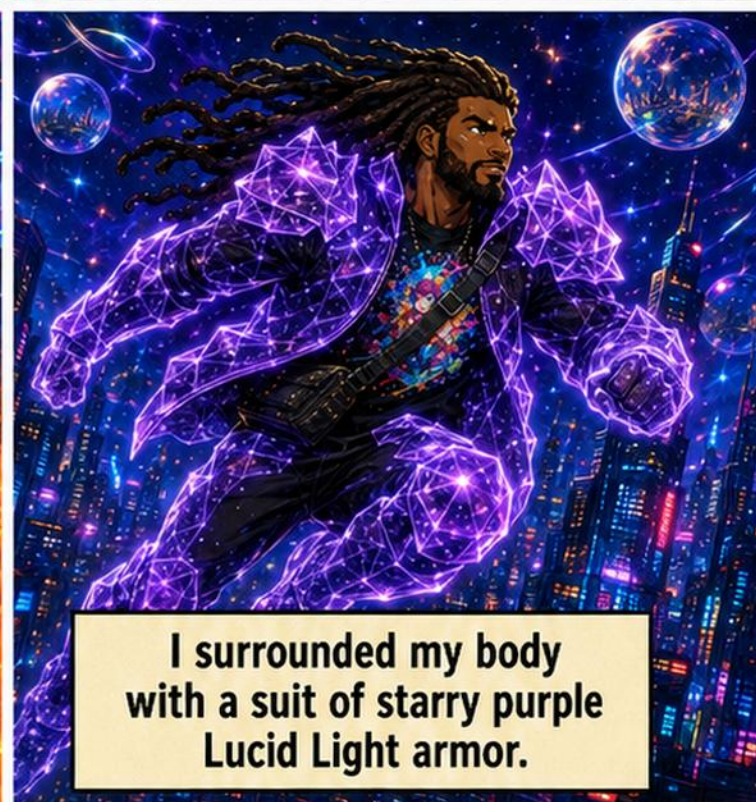

I began the dream
flying through a city
like a superhero.

A massive dragon appeared above the skyline and flew directly toward me.

When it opened its mouth,
a furnace of fire filled
my path.

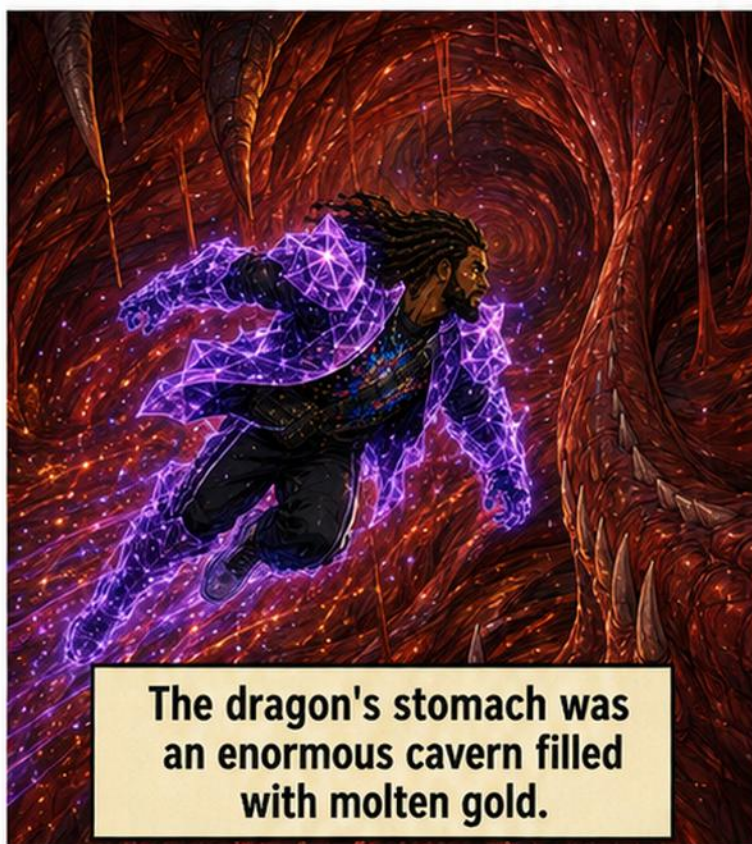

I surrounded my body
with a suit of starry purple Lucid Light armor.

Instead of fighting the dragon, I accelerated straight through the flames.

Protected by the armor, I flew through its open mouth and down its throat.

The dragon's stomach was an enormous cavern filled with molten gold.

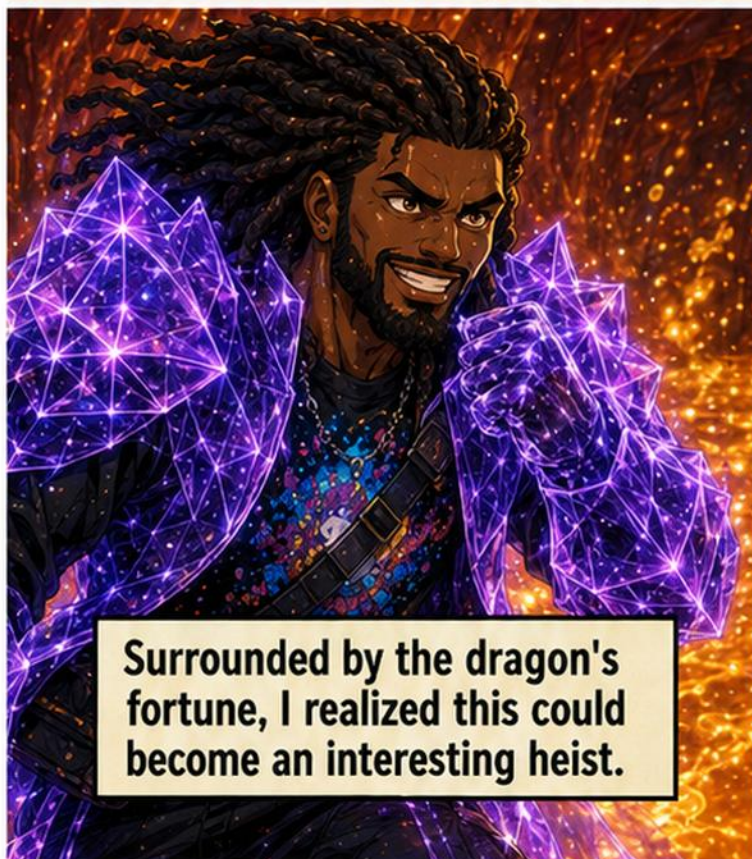

I wondered whether dragons hoarded treasure because they actually ate it.

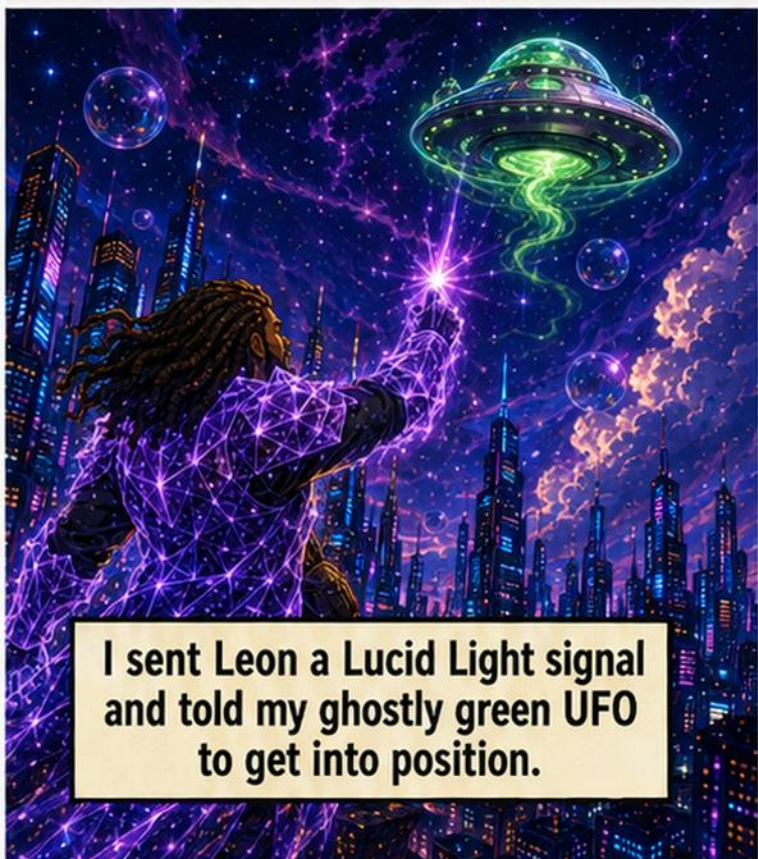

Whatever the reason, my Lucid Light armor kept me safe above the liquid metal.

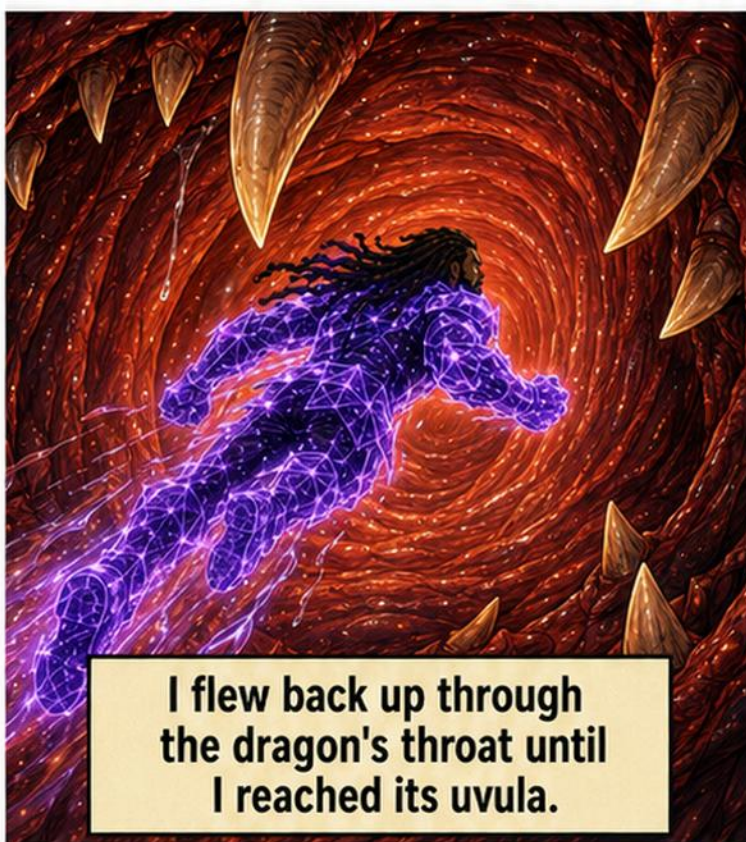

They could not spend gold at a market, so perhaps it was stored food.

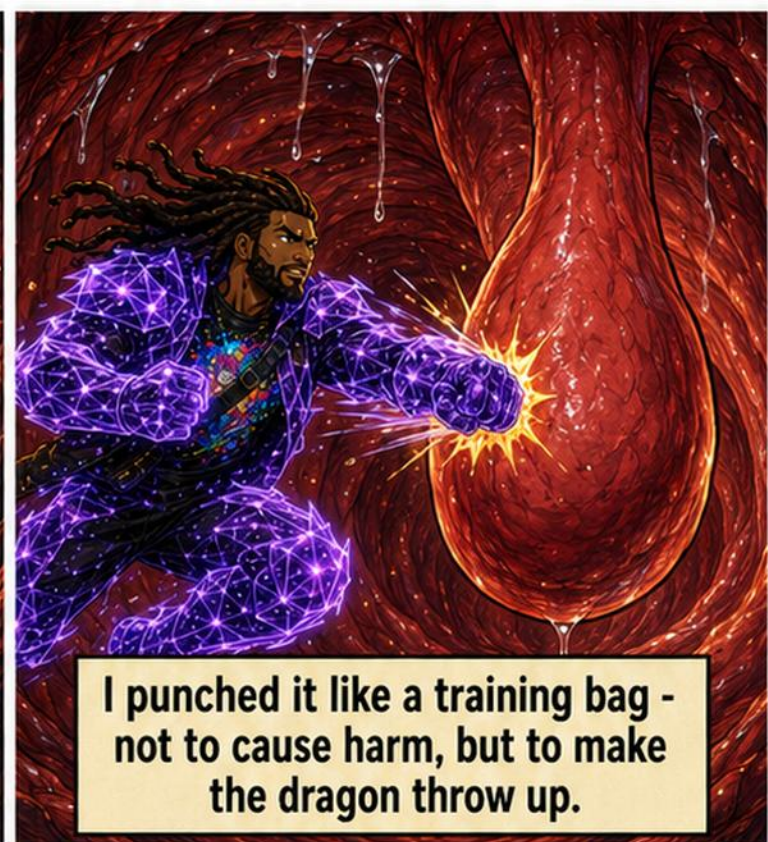

Surrounded by the dragon's fortune, I realized this could become an interesting heist.

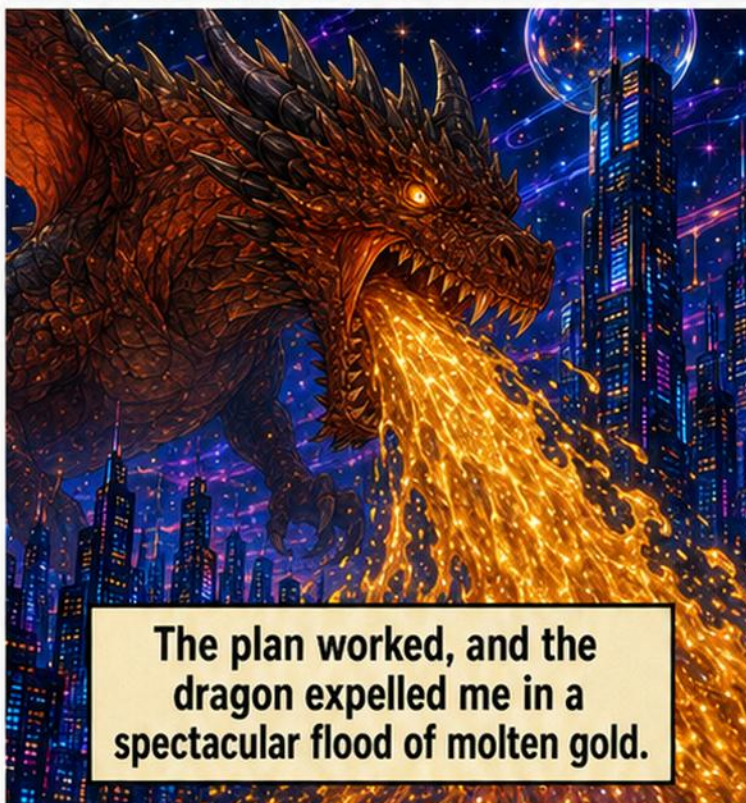

I sent Leon a Lucid Light signal and told my ghostly green UFO to get into position.

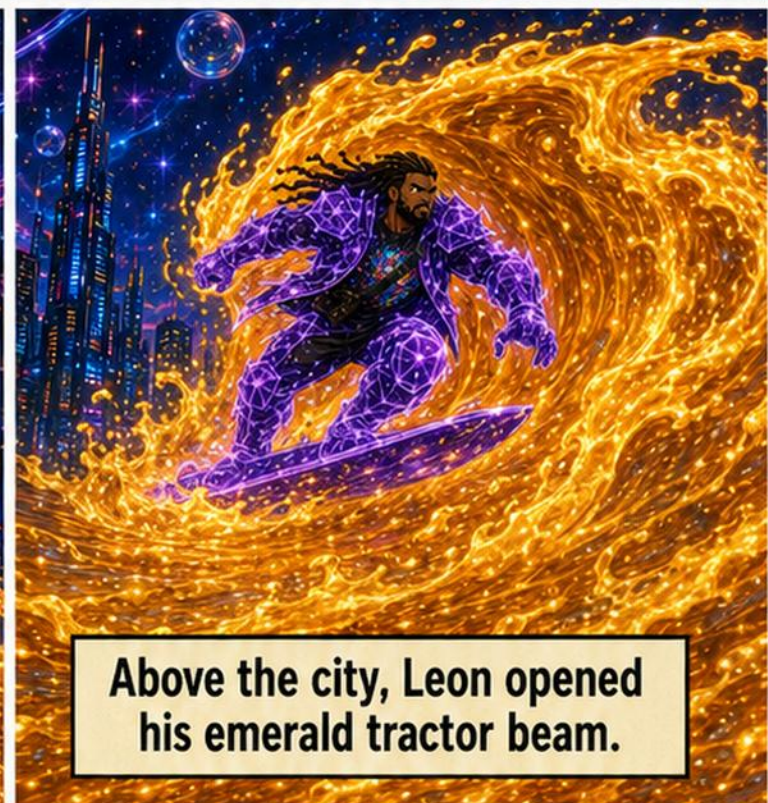

I flew back up through the dragon's throat until I reached its uvula.

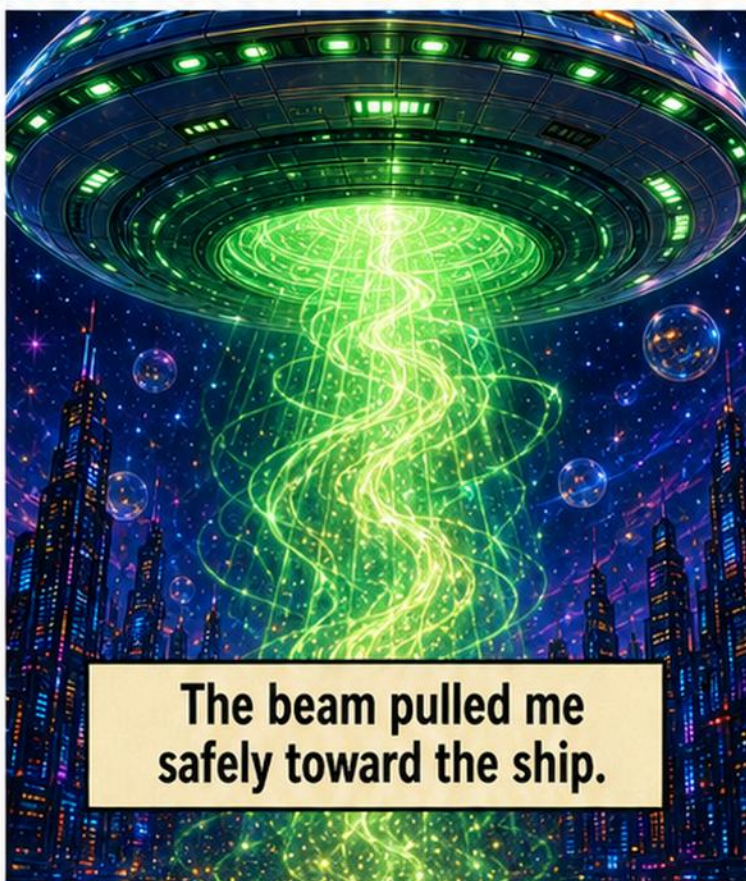

I punched it like a training bag - not to cause harm, but to make the dragon throw up.

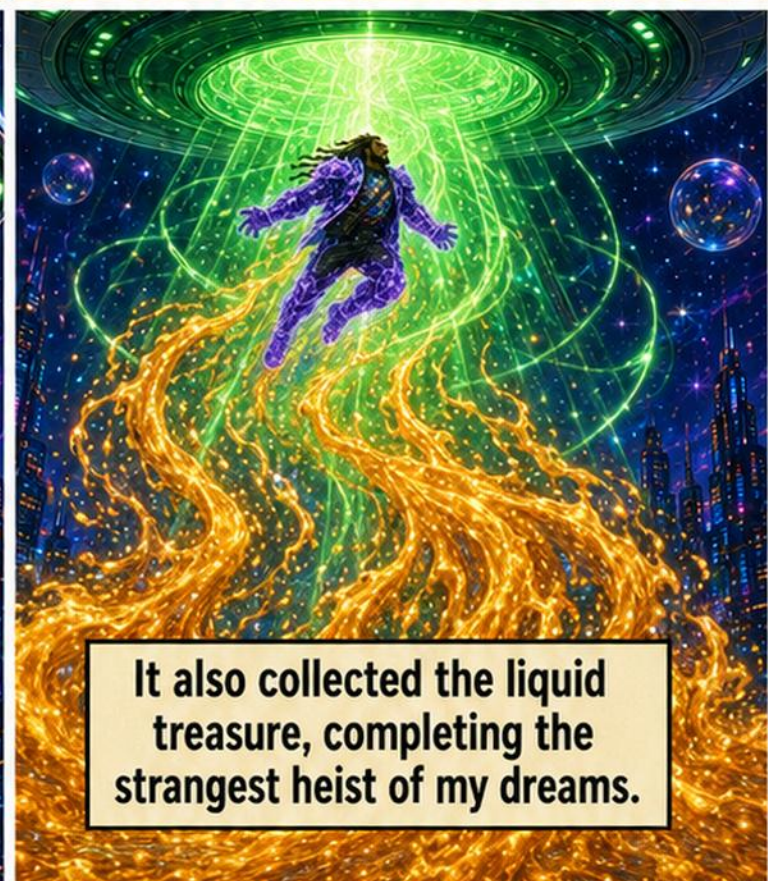

The plan worked, and the dragon expelled me in a spectacular flood of molten gold.

Above the city, Leon opened his emerald tractor beam.

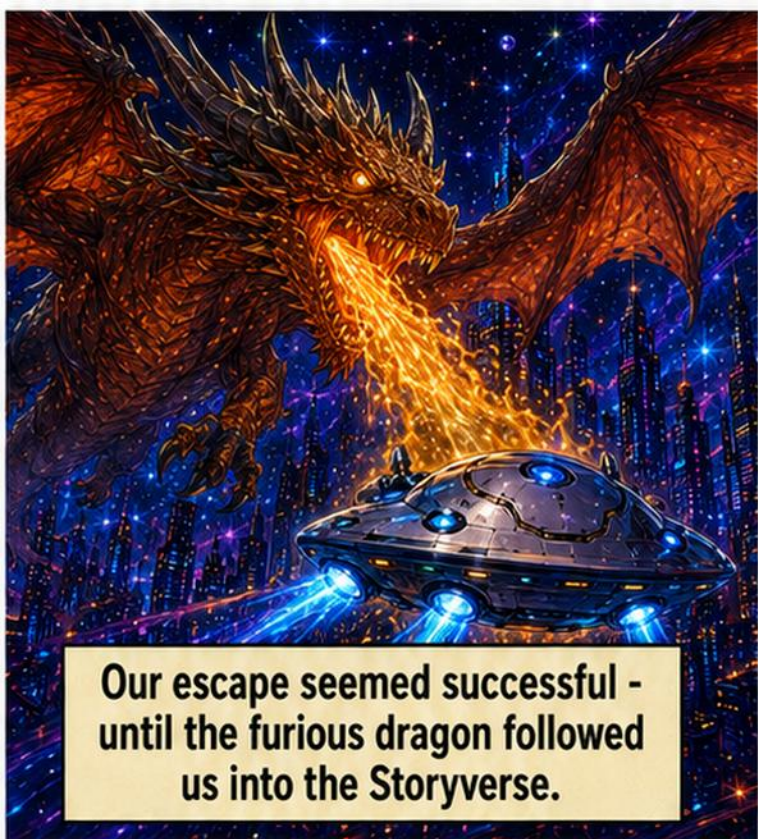

The beam pulled me safely toward the ship.

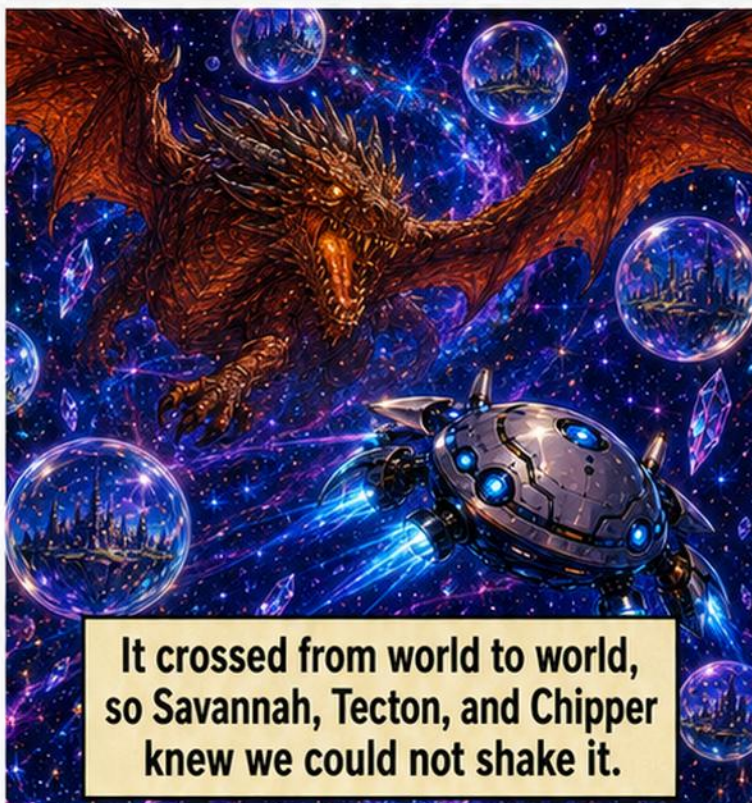

It also collected the liquid treasure, completing the strangest heist of my dreams.

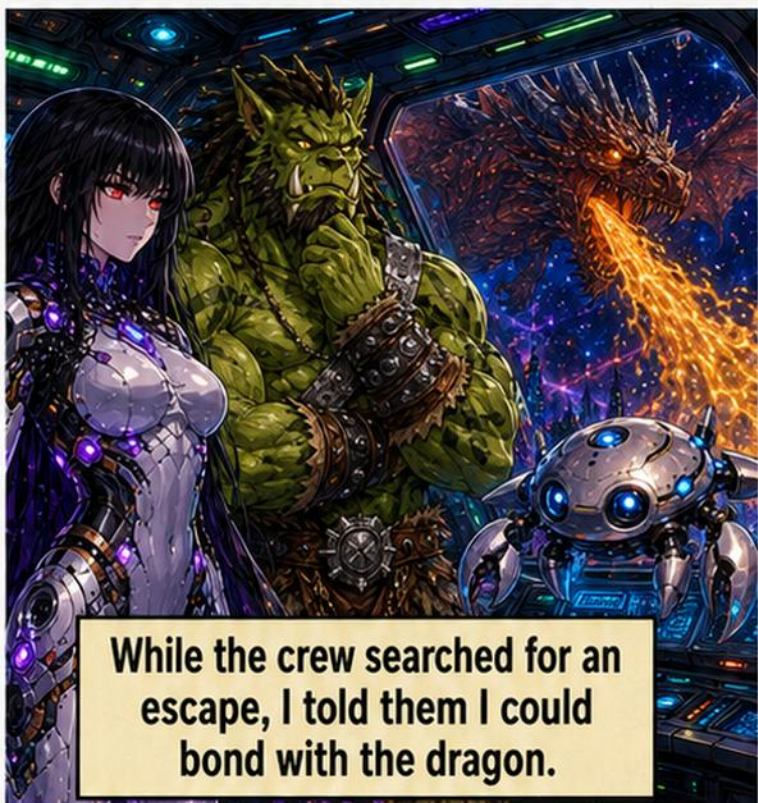

Inside Leon, we now carried a huge amount of gold stolen from a dragon.

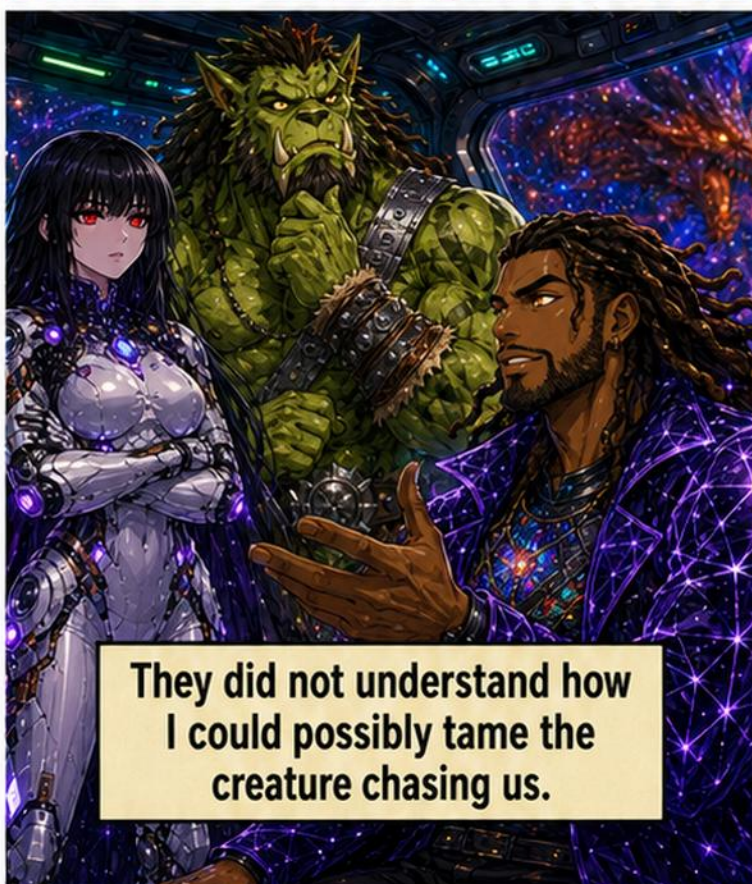

Our escape seemed successful - until the furious dragon followed us into the Storyverse.

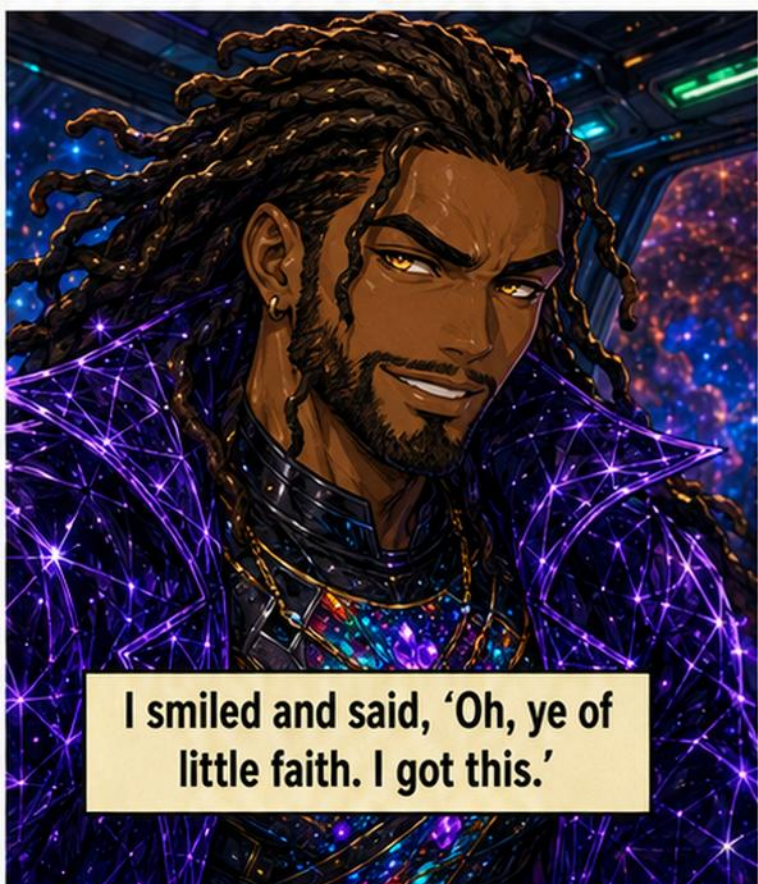

It crossed from world to world, so Savannah, Tecton, and Chipper knew we could not shake it.

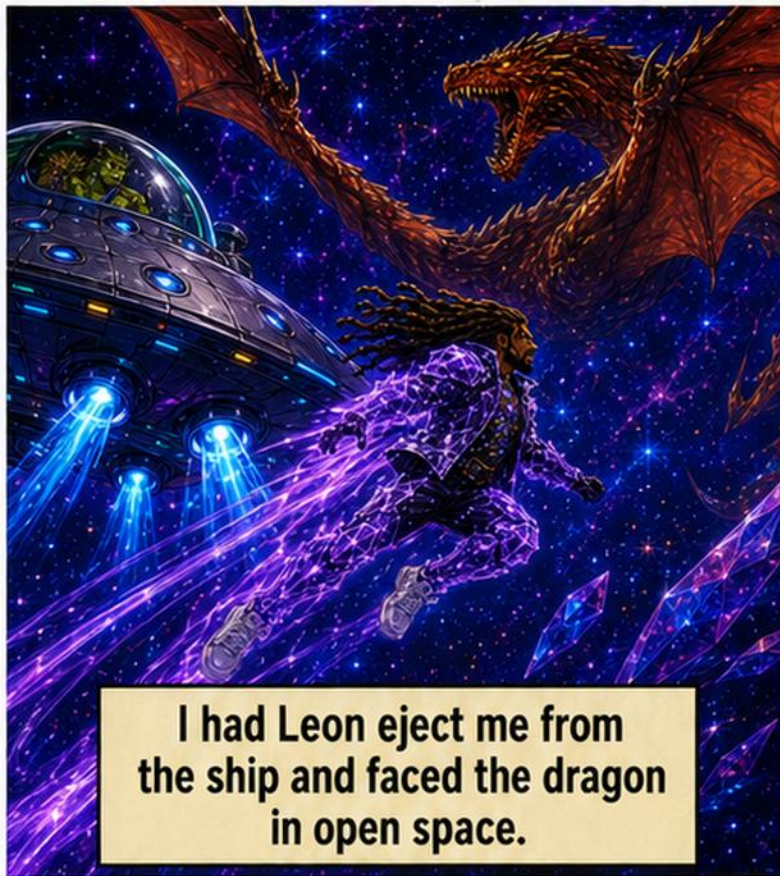

While the crew searched for an escape, I told them I could bond with the dragon.

They did not understand how I could possibly tame the creature chasing us.

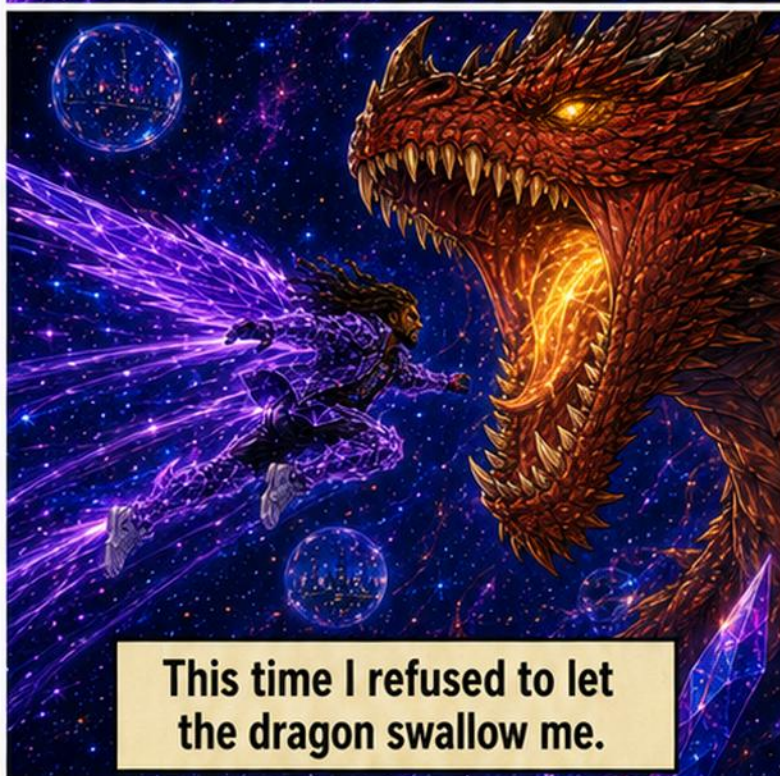

I smiled and said, 'Oh, ye of little faith. I got this.'

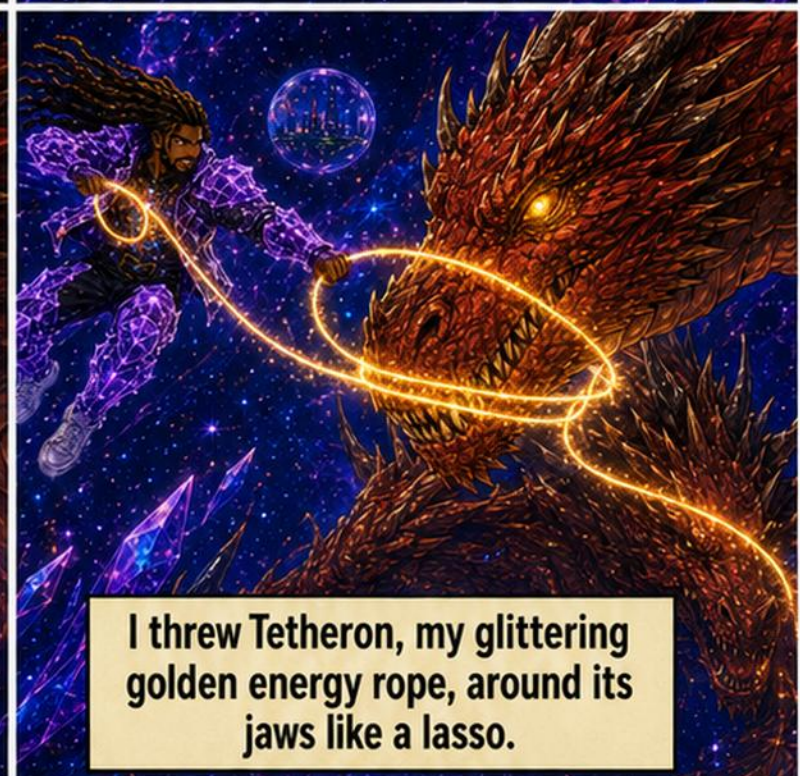

I had Leon eject me from the ship and faced the dragon in open space.

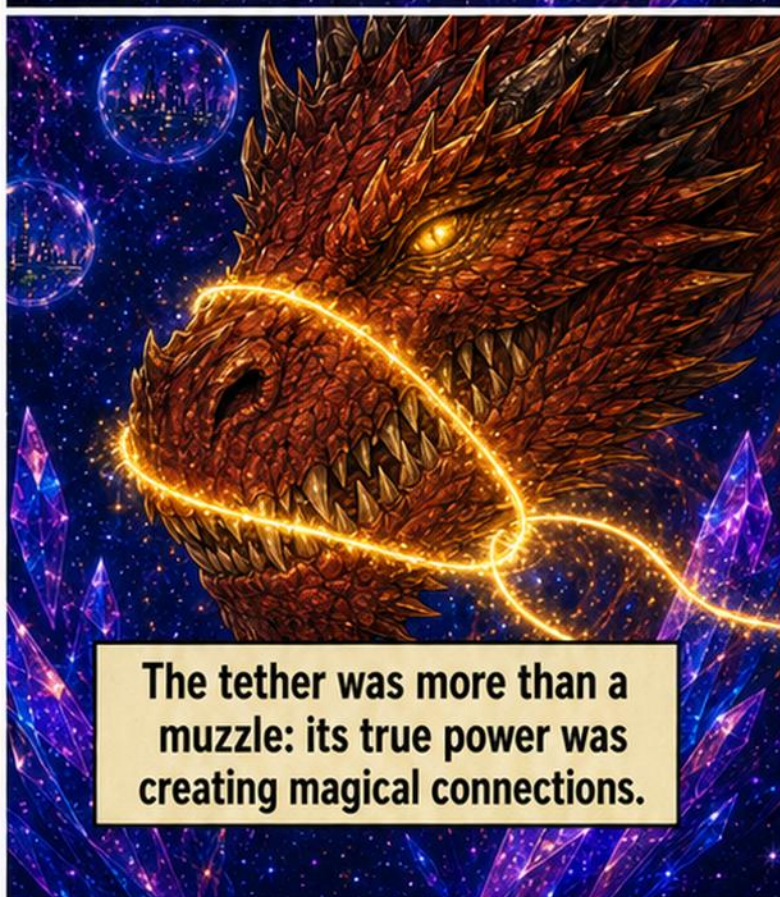

My Lucid Light armor expanded into a pair of radiant jetpack wings.

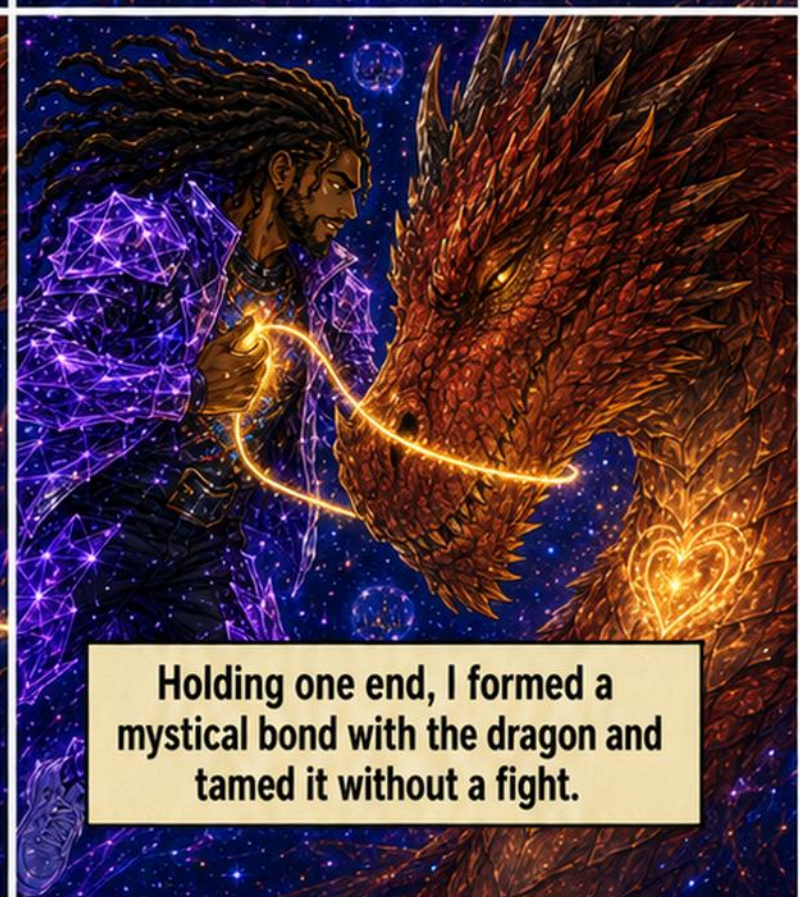

This time I refused to let the dragon swallow me.

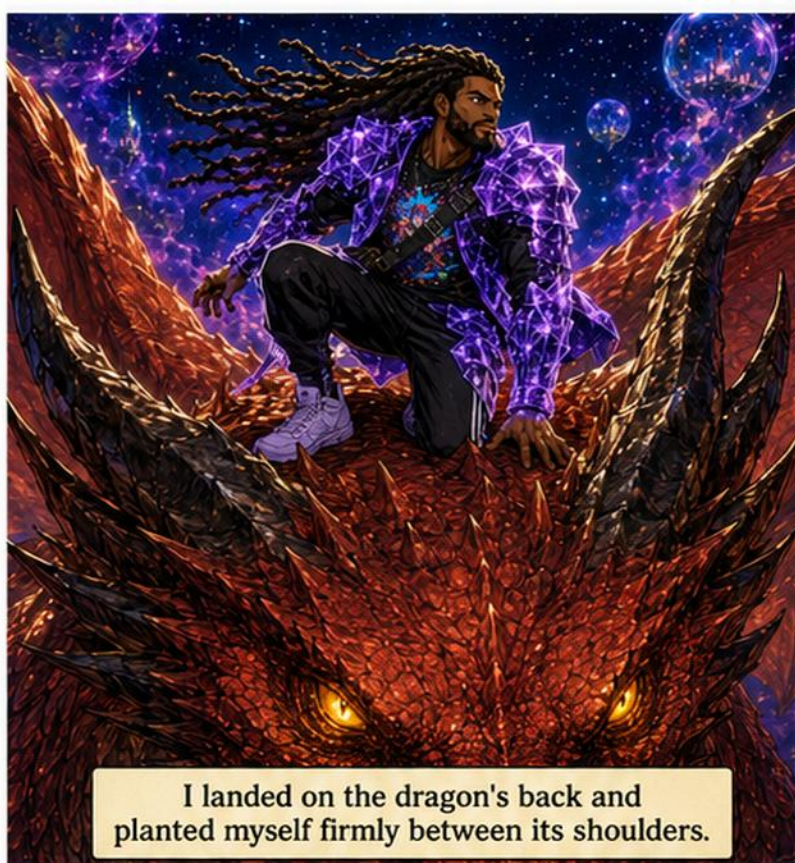

I threw Tetheron, my glittering golden energy rope, around its jaws like a lasso.

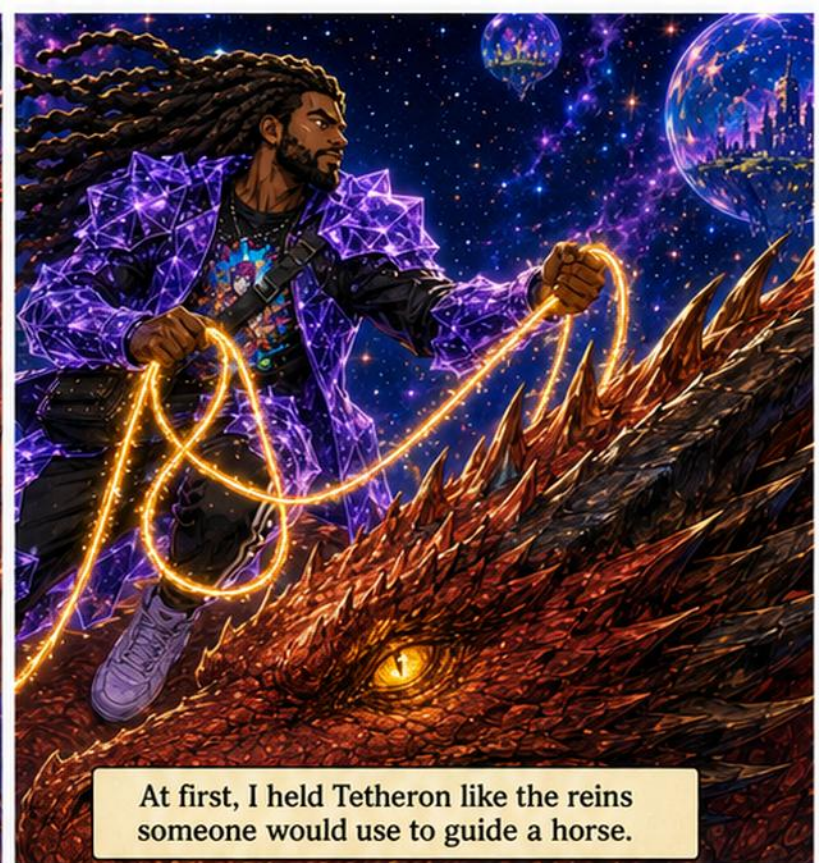

The tether was more than a muzzle: its true power was creating magical connections.

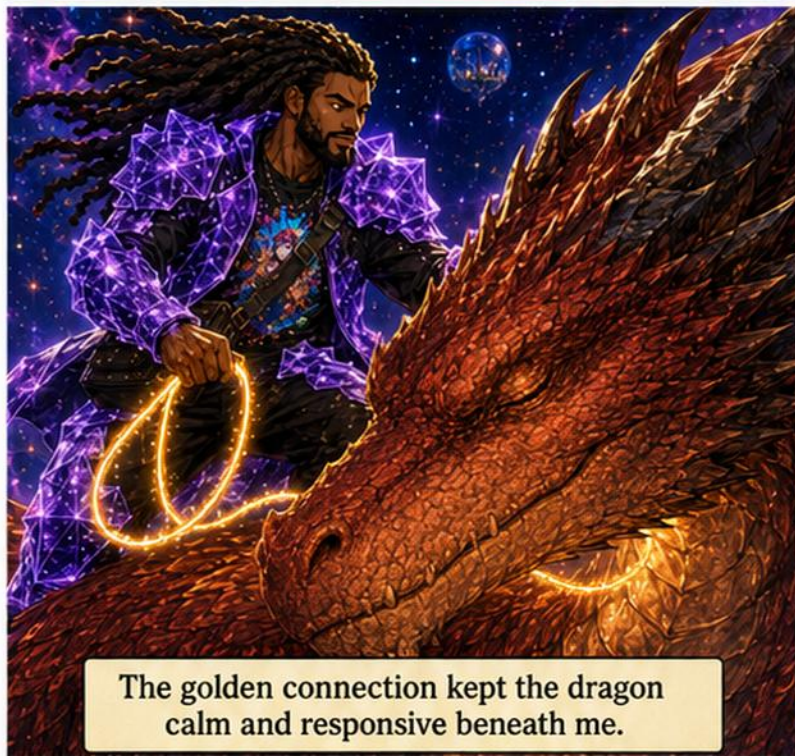

Holding one end, I formed a mystical bond with the dragon and tamed it without a fight.

I landed on the dragon's back and planted myself firmly between its shoulders.

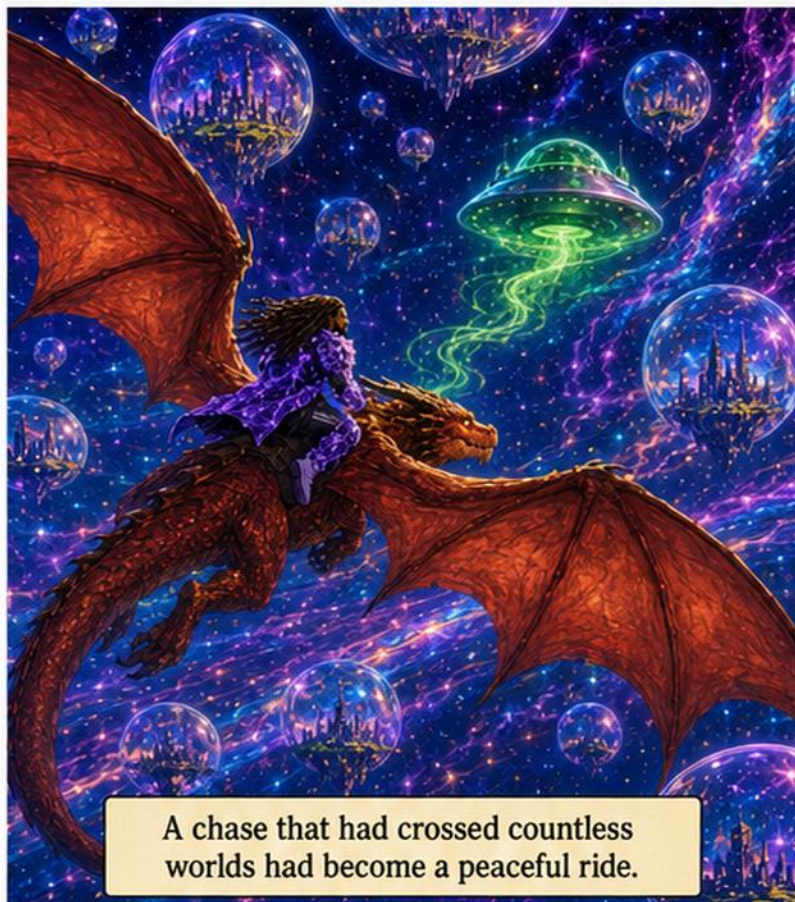

At first, I held Tetheron like the reins someone would use to guide a horse.

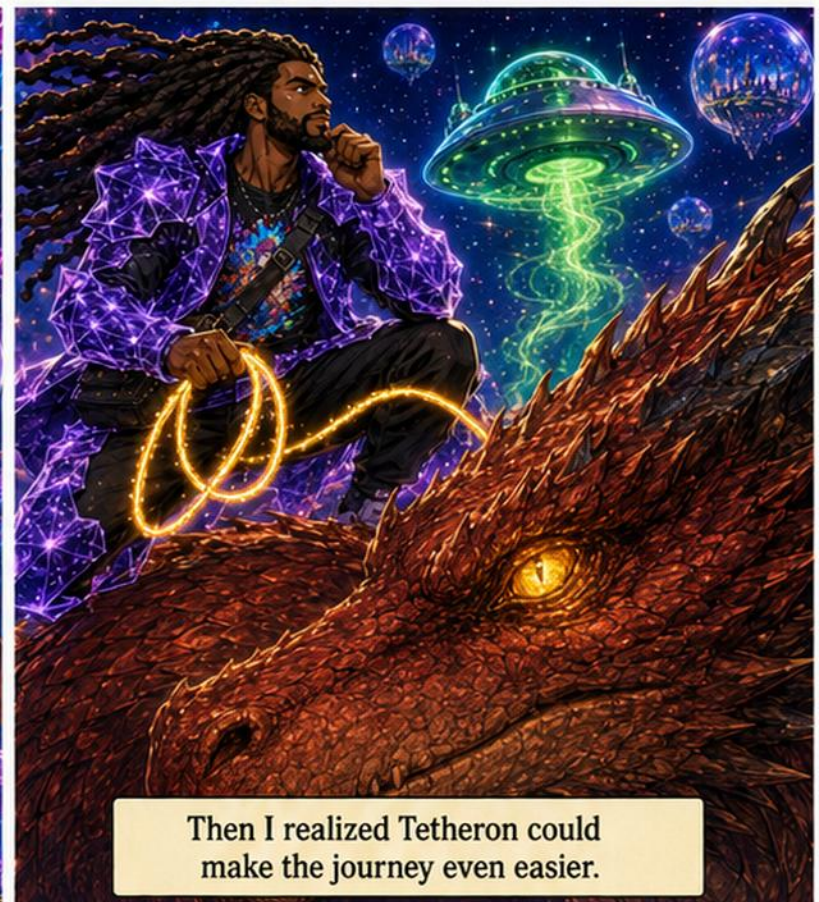

The golden connection kept the dragon calm and responsive beneath me.

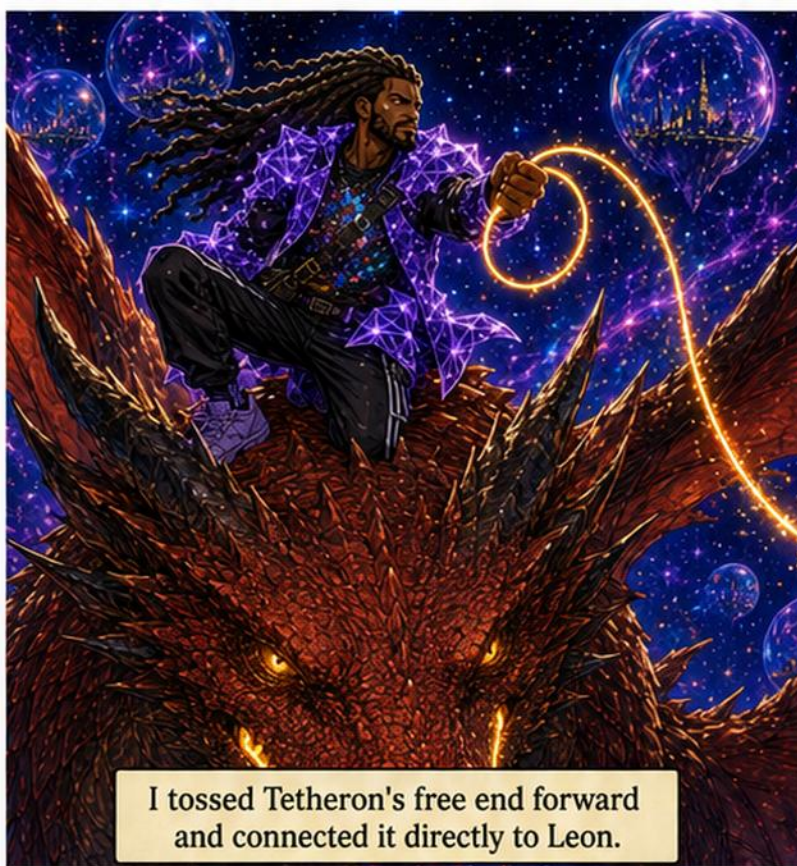

Leon flew ahead while my new mount followed through the Storyverse.

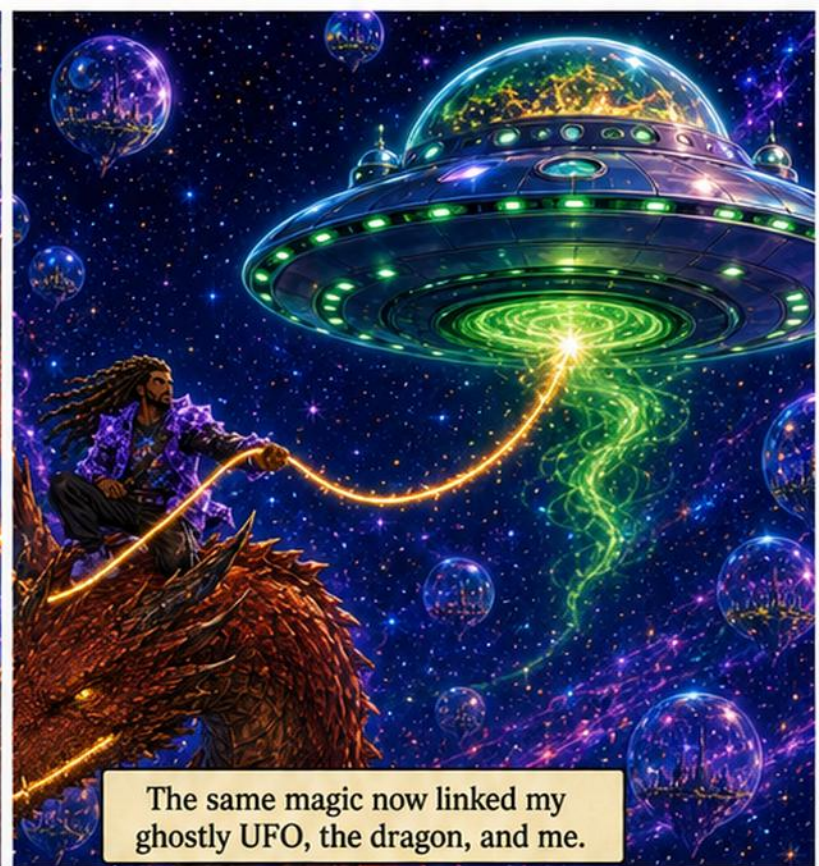

A chase that had crossed countless worlds had become a peaceful ride.

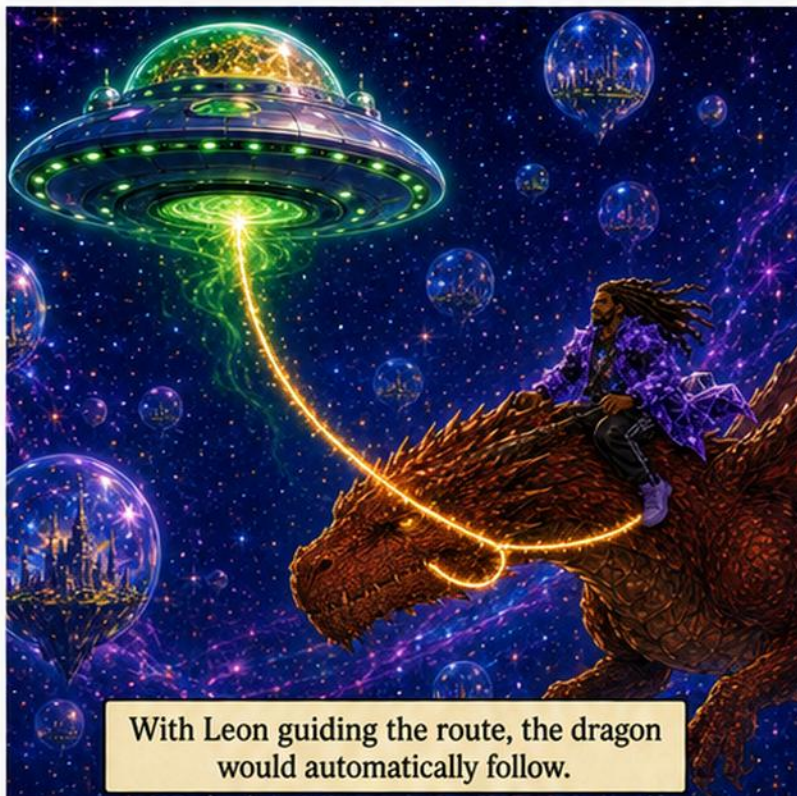

Then I realized Tetheron could make the journey even easier.

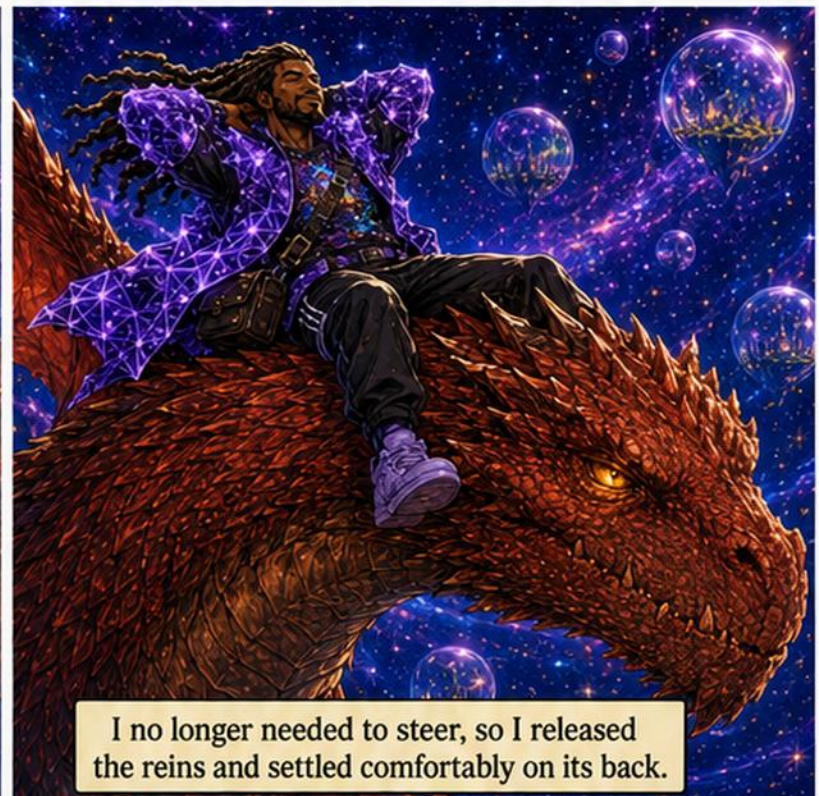

I tossed Tetheron's free end forward and connected it directly to Leon.

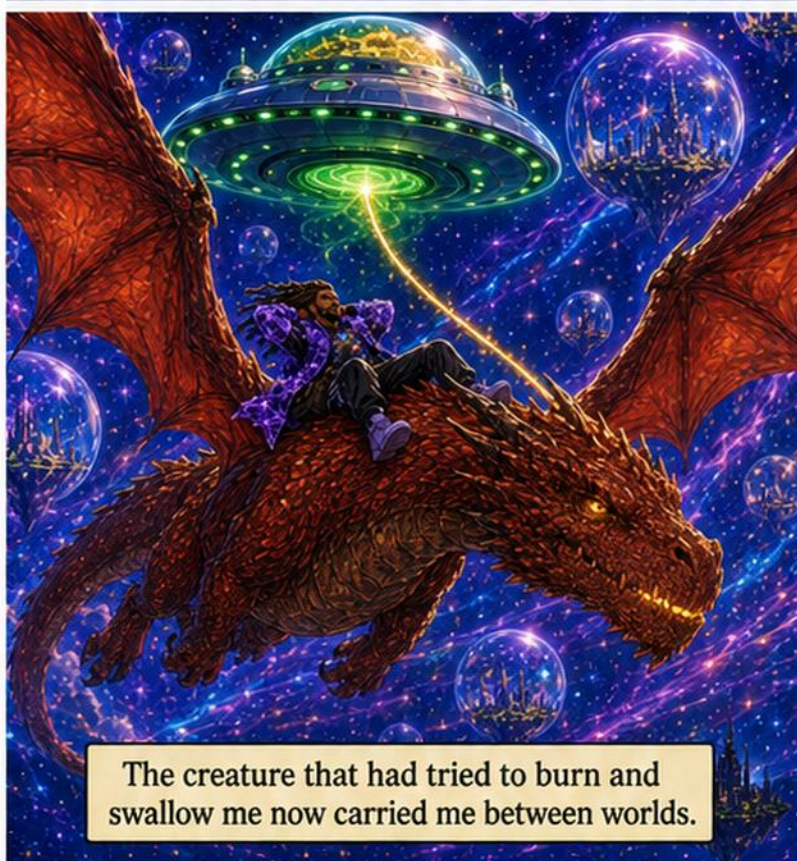

The same magic now linked my ghostly UFO, the dragon, and me.

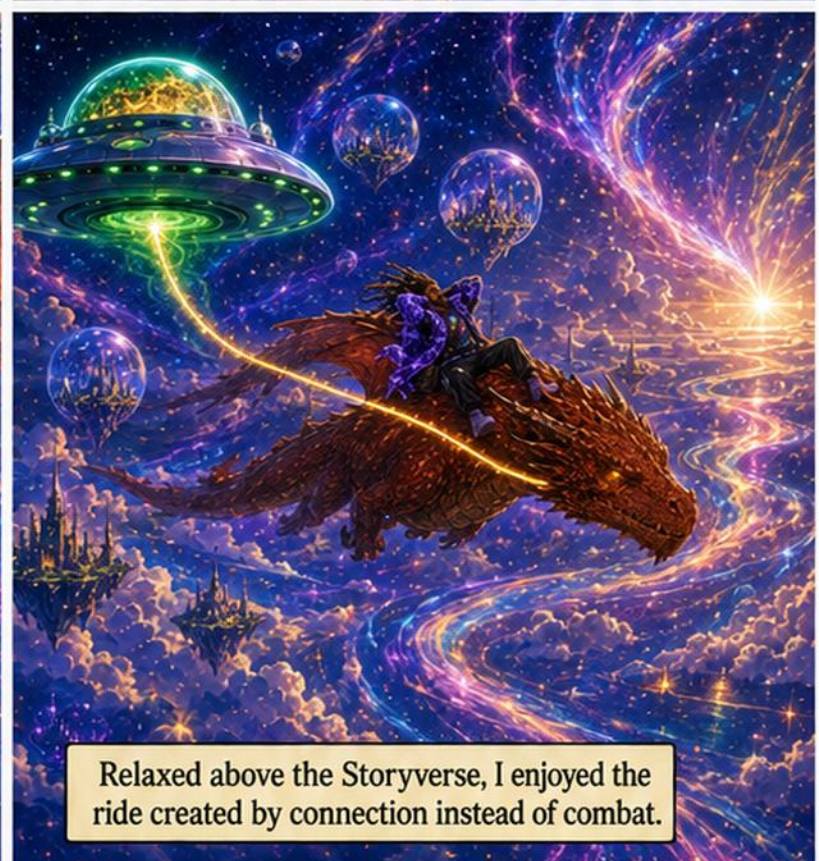

With Leon guiding the route, the dragon would automatically follow.

I no longer needed to steer, so I released the reins and settled comfortably on its back.

The creature that had tried to burn and swallow me now carried me between worlds.

Relaxed above the Storyverse, I enjoyed the ride created by connection instead of combat.
