

07/01/2026: Debtor Camp Dinner Bell

Sleep paralysis
opened the lucid gate.

I arrived alone,
almost ghostly.

This kingdom wore
fantasy like a mask.

Then the constable
found her.

Unpaid taxes became chains.

The camp waited
beyond the walls.

The poor mined
the king's miracles.

Every core fed
the throne.

The king had stitched
stolen power into royalty.

Fire bowed.

Stone bent.

The world warped
toward his hunger.

I did not challenge
his strength.

I challenged
his bait.

Lucid Light shaped
a dinner bell.

My tether
struck bronze.

The sound reached
things that eat power.

The ogre fell
hungry from space.

The king answered
with elemental might.

Lion strength
shook the hall.

Ogre strength
broke it.

Then hunger
found the seams.

The cores
went dark.

The king became
only a lion.

The prisoners saw
the throne fall.

But hunger
climbed the steps.

A new tyrant
sat down.

Then he saw me.

He knew my name
from the last few nights.

That was enough.

Abuse the throne,
and I return.

The camp
gates opened.

Fear can hold
a tyrant still.

