

I became lucid inside
a black werewolf,
standing upon cold
pink liquid glass that
moved beneath me.

The living sanctuary
glowed blue above,
while strange black
rocks rose from its
impossible floor.

A woman's unseen
voice sang about
sanctuary as I
summoned my rainbow crystal sword.

A false awakening left me in an academy bed beside the video's lone watcher in blue darkness.

I packed my clothes and action figures, but she switched off the screen as I fled.

Beyond the darkness, beautiful suspended gemstones revealed themselves as possibly dangerous insulation.

The floating sanctuary was a lucid realm, while the city below held my ordinary dream.

The ladder had grounded me into forgetfulness when it touched the city.

Separated from the ground, it carried my awareness between bodies, worlds, and waking.